Vision Generation and Ignite Monash, in conjunction with Monash University and World Vision Australia, would like to invite you to the launch World Vision’s first international advocacy campaign Child Health Now by attending a forum on:

‘How best to achieve Millennium Development Goals 4 & 5 by 2015’
- MDG 4: Reduce Child Mortality
- MDG 5: Improve Maternal Health

The panel for this evening will be made up by the following guests:

Reverand Tim Costello – The CEO of World Vision Australia and one of Australia’s leading voices on social justice issues. Mr. Costello will be mediating the panel.
Sue England - A consultant midwife with 20 years of midwifery experience. Sue provides maternal and child health and nutrition advice and technical support to World Vision funded health projects. Her role in the field is to evaluate projects and give advice as to how to improve them.
Dr. Chris Morgan – A Principal Fellow at the Burnet Institute’s Centre for International Health, Mr Morgan is a public health physician and paediatrician with a special interest in international child and adolescent health.
Dr. Alison Morgan - Dr. Morgan has 20 years experience in education and training in primary health care and maternal and child health. She has an interest in the development of international health systems and their workers, and has had hands-on experiences working through South and South-East Asia.
Rami Subhi – from the School of Paediatrics at the Royal Children’s Hospital.
Meg Howe – Registered nurse, studied Public Health at Syddansk University in Denmark. Working as Community Health Promotoer and has been involved in World Vision for 8 years including being the Youth Ambassador in 2007.

Join us at 5.30pm on Thursday August 18 for drinks and nibbles, and to wander the stalls of Vision Generation, Ignite and Global Health Gateway. Formal discussions will begin at 6pm.
Venue: Monash University, Clayton Campus, South Lecture Theatre 1.

A strong and continuing partnership between Monash University and World Vision Australia began in September of 2009. Monash University has supported the endeavours of World Vision and Vision Generation Monash (World Vision’s youth movement). In May of 2011, Monash University became Australia’s first Child Health Now Community, this discussion is to celebrate the launch of this initiative.

We would appreciate an RSVP to kelsey.paske@vgen.org by August 14th for catering purposes.
